ENNYROYAL PILLS

TRANSYLVANIA WINE.

Peasants Treading the Grapes in the Old Style of Classic Days.

Across the fields, from every direct tion, crept the ox-teams, followed by groups of peasants. Already in the wine-gardens the work had begun; the unyoked oxen lay in the pleasant shade; carts, with the wine-casks set lin them were drawn up here and there in a little open space; the white figures went to and fro among the vines; there was a buzz of voices from every side, and now and then snatches of song. Up and down the broad alleyways through the vineyards we strayed, the sun burning us with fiercer heat as it rose higher and higher, the warmth and the scents of summer everywhere on the busy hillside. At each vineyard we were laden with a fresh burden of grapes, and we ate them as we went, flinging bunch after bunch to the begging gypsy children who romped at our heels. Long before noon a man with loose white trousers rolled high above his knees was jumping in every wine-cask, the juice in rich reddish istreams falling into the buckets set below. At noon the smoke from many camp-kettles rose above the vines, and mingling with the sweet scents of summer was the smell of the midday gulyas.

As we passed the large vineyards we saw in each little white house of the guardian a banquet spread, and around the table one of the gypsy bands from the hotel of the town stood playing. But at the smaller vinevards the cloth was laid on the grass, or on a table under a rude shed, and here Romanies in peasant dress from the near villages were fiddling away under the trees, while men, pressing the grapes in the casks, danced wildly to the music, throwing their brown, grape-stained arms above their heads, every now and then a mad couple twirling round and round on the smooth grass; smiling Wallachs were begging us to taste the new wine; even the children in the nun's garden were pirouetting and singing, while the black-robed sisters and the priest in the cassock chalked up on the cask the number of buckets

In Tuscany, when we went to the vintage, the peasants pressed the wines inside dark, gloomy cellars; in Provence, the land of "sunburnt mirth," the grapes were crushed by steam in brand-new buildings with all the latest modern improvements. It was only in Transylvania that we found the peasants dancing in the old glad, free fashion of classic days, out in the sunshine.

to the sound of music. The sun was setting when we saw the long white line again moving across the fields to the town opposite, with the cathedral-crowned fortress towering above it, and far away on each side toward neighboring villages. The light was fading when we started after them, and stalking through the stubble came the black line of the gypsy bands, in each one man with his bass viol held over his shoulder like some strange, mystic banner. They played in the hotel restaurant that evening, when the town was gay with the gaiety of an abundant vintage. - Century.

All Eyes on the Cherokee Council at Tahlequah.

NO DIRECT INFORMATION OBTAINED.

If the Cherokees Can Get the Money Some Way Ratification Will Be Sure-A Chief's Suggestion.

TAHLEQUAR, L. T., March 28.-Mem bers of the Cherckee council were ar riving all yesterday. The hotels are filled to overflowing, while the lodging houses have all they can handle. Congressman Field, chairman of the Indian committee in the last congress, has not yet arrived. Advices from Chief Harris says he will be here to-day. Some seventy members of the legislature were interviewed, but so far as getting any direct information concerning their opinion as to the disposition to be made of the strip the interviews were a failure. It can be said, however, that a large majority is in favor of the amendment as passed by congress, but nobody seems able to offer any plan by which the money may be made available after the land is taken.

That all of the money must be forthcoming immediately after the sale is ratified is no longer a question. The people have believed that if the whole mount of the price is not at once available the trade will be postponed. They do not care where the money come from nor what shape it comes in, just so it comes in form of a payment, so each member gets all his share and thus ends the matter. The Indians seemed to be pleased with that part of the agreement which provides that the council may negotiate loans of the $8,-500,000, but insist that the United States must arrange the details for such loans before they will acquiesce in accepting from the government

There is another element of the tribe which insists it will be a dangerous thing to longer prolong the opening of the strip upon the grounds that the government will not tolerate such a move. Unfortunately this element is weak from the fact that they have long since been shelved in a political way, ex-Chief Bushyhead, of this class, having been sat down upon by the Indians. Dick Wolf, a full-blood, the leader of the National party, has been reported from Washington as being opposed to the treaty. This, however, is a mis-take. Wolf, will use his influence in the direction of agreeing to the amendment. He said the Indians made good trade when they sold the land, and he is in favor of the deal at once. He says the strip is overrated and outside of a small part in the eastern part is only fit for cattle graz-Summed up in a nutshell no one can tell what the fate of the bill will be. So far as Chief Harris is concerned he will pursue a conservative course, recommending, among other things, the ratification and final cession. The whole thing is left with the council, and unless handicapped by outside influence it will agree in a few days. One new feature in the matter is a plan by Full Blood Counciling. This member proposes to introduce a bill to ratify the treaty as it now stands with the exception of the section related to the matter of procuring the money upon the proposed agreement instead of negotiating a loan. He will offer a substitute asking the United States to authorize the issue to every head of the family of United States bonds Claribelle-Don't you think Charlie for his or her share of the proceeds, to bear the same interest as proposed in Isabelle-Yes, dear. It can't even the amendment. The proposition meets with favor, but a majority think it impracticable. Such a course would necessitate the sending of the matter back "Jobson is very ambitious. He is al- to congress and would delay for another ways figuring to do something great in year the opening of the strip. The the future." ment. THE ANCIENT MARINER.

A Grewsome Tarn Comes All the Way From Cape Horn. SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Capt. Atinson arrived from Liverpool via New York yesterday to take command of the British ship Goodrich, whose master. Capt. Williams, committed suicide a few weeks ago. Capt. Atkinson says that in conversation with Capt. Spurning, of the ship Drumeraig, which left San Francisco for Liverpool about four months ago, Spurning told him of a remarkable experience. While rounding the horn, the Drumcraig nearly ran into an ice berg and, when she got clear, in plain view was a wooden bark hard and fast on the ice. On deck and in the shrouds could be seen lumps which the sailers on the Drumeraig took to be human bodies cased in ice and were believed to be the crew who had been frozen to death. CHICAGO, March 28. - William Shaughnessy, who arrived in Chicago two weeks ago from Ireland, made a novel plea when arraigned in court yesterday for nearly killing Detective Stoyan. Shaughnessy claimed to have been told by friends that all men in Chicago wearing large black hats were robbers, and as Stovan answered to the description he dealt with him accordingly. The explanation resulted in Shaughnessy's release.
